Section: 2 – Colleague Profile

"Thanks for all your efforts in making sure we achieved this within an incredibly tight timeframe; I know this was not easy at times and it's down to your dedication and professionalism that we have hit the target. The quality of your staff (Chris Chudleigh) and their delivery was of a level that left a hugely positive impression on some of the finest instructors within the Academy."

Royal Military Academy Sandhurst 2021

Chris joined the British Army in 1989 and is struggling to break the uniform habit! Remaining an Officer in The Royal Welsh as a reservist, teaching young officers at the Land Command and Staff College. His service took him all over the world, but most notably it was the military that ignited the passion for Mentoring in Leadership and human development. Having established his own training company on leaving regular service, he devised and delivered the training in the very successful Sky TV show "School of Hard Knocks".

Utilising sport and physical activity to connect with individuals took him into schools to collaborate with teenagers struggling to cope with authority. He has operated in prisons in both the US and UK, assisting in preparing inmates for life on the outside and working with groups prone to anti-social behaviour in an urban environment.

Leading people (and more relevantly connecting with them so that they follow willingly) has become a passion. Chris has worked on large scale MOD Training Programmes/Projects. He has both developed and delivered a "cultural shift" in Instructor behaviours at The Royal Military Academy Sandhurst where he still serves as an Instructor and Mentor.

Chris will deliver programmes addressing fear, pressure, entitlement, leadership (all aspects), management, mental well-being, diversity, equality in the workplace, communication, failure, empathy, change, and discipline.

Chris is married with two children and when time allows very much enjoys keeping kit. He also very much enjoys ski bobsled having finished 17th in the world at the world championships in 1991 but nowadays prefers to spend his downtime as husband and father.
